To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Chris Suchanek

It is with great pleasure that I recommend Chris Suchanek as an Interventionist. Chris knows what substance abuse looks like, knows the social stigma, the characteristics of withdrawal, and the stages of recovery. He knows how addicts justify their behavior and he knows how to reach them in ways that transform their hearts. Chris cares for the user and for the family equally. He knows the boundaries of responsibility and self respect and he knows how to motivate people towards their own health and well being. His point of view in this field is invaluable.

As a Substance Abuse Counselor he is superb, and as an Interventionist he is uniquely qualified and very effective. He understands the need for early intervention, has the courage to do late-in-the-game intervention and he has the savvy to do both effectively.

As a human being he is warm, humorous, and grace-filled, but make no mistake, he is serious about integrity, both his and yours. This man is a welcomed addition to the profession and society of addiction counselors.

With Highest Regards,
